

4 Tips to Hire Employees with Integrity

1 - Ask for ethics

When you post your help wanted announcement, make it clear that you are looking for someone with integrity.

2 - Target ethics in your interview

Free-wheeling, superficial interviews are rarely enough to get the job done. Plan your questions strategically so that you can target the ethical standards that you care about.

3 - Administer personality assessments

Some companies give personality tests to potential applicants. This can help you see how their personality might gel with your current staff.

4 - Check on employment history

Go to the effort to speak to former bosses to verify employment dates and ask about an applicant's integrity.
